THE GRANDEST VICTORY OF THE WAR.

We are content for the present says the Boston Journal of yesterday to relevant our readers to the telegraphic details of the terrible but glorious fight at Pitts burg. Tennessee—the groatest battle, in point of numbers, ever fought on this continent, one of the most obstinately contested, and, as regards this war, at once the most important and the most honorable to the valor and heroism of the Union troops. If followed up, as we cannot doubt it will be, with the vigor or and skill which foiled the rebel attack, this proliminary teiumph will also prove the consummation of our cause in the whole Southwest, and do more than any other event thus far to extinguish the rebellion.

It is probable that the rebels have tne rebellion.

It is probable that the rebels have even had a stronger sense of the deciseven had a stronger sense of the decusive nature of the impending struggle it did Julia Tucker. than is generally obtained on the loyal side. For months they had been mass. ing their best troops in the vicinity under their best generals. Evans had ta-Marassas-Bragg, their boasted artillerists, had added his carefully-trained forces at Pensacola - Johnston, their all early on the ground, working with desperate energy for the hour which was to roll back the swelling tide of Federal victories. Over all, in influence if not in rank, was the boasted, petted Beauregard—the pride of the rebel army-

The battle, therefore, eponed with the sudden but carefully planued precipitation of 60,000 rebels on 35,000 Union troops. That was Sunday morning, and the contest raged with varying fortness but iromendous energy, throughout the whole day. For analying a fallow man. He refused mob, fled like sheep before our trampling foot and horse.

The losses on both sides are undoubtedly very heavy, but we are inclined to think that the figures now given are considerably too high-as is generally the case in the first reports of battles. But a short time will clear up this only painful part of the record, as well as enlighten us with regard to the sequel. Another contest must quickly followunless the rebels evade it by a retreat, which would be the acknowledgement of utter rout, Their discomstare must have even broken the prestige of Beauregard, and demoralized the remnant of the survivors. If, therefore, our troops are in a condition to follow up their splondid success, and if the rebels have not fresh reserves in considerable strength not fresh reserves in considerable strength

In personal appearance the famous Commodore Foote is short; thick set, compact, and muscular, formed for endurance, having a constitution of iron attempth. Like the great German General Sigel, he is a close student, and devoted to his profession. THE GREAT WESTERN VICTORY. The following aummary of news was bulletined this morning, at the Express Office, and although any information respecting it was denied us, and we were told that if we wanted it we must pay for it, we give it to our readers in the shape it was furnished to us by a friend, who copied from the Builetin, on which it was posted. We doubt not we come by it quite as honestly as any other parties in Newport.

ED NEWS.

Our troops occupy Corinth,—Gen, Johnsons body found on the field.—The report that Beargard had an arm shot off, confirmed. Gen, B. mads a speech to his army before the attack, saying that he would either water his horse in the Tennessee River, or in Hell, as the fight before them was Hell, unless successful,—Our forces was 8,000, Monday, Gen, Buell pursued them with 12,000 troops, mostly Cavalry. Gen, Great slightly wounded. Gen. Sudley wounded. Our forces inst six batterles ounded. Our forces lost six batterles and recaptured them six different times.—Our loss from 600 to 1600 killed, 3000 to 4000 wounded. Rebel loss twice that num-
